Corn Breaks Again-Wheat and Oats Steady-Coffee Declining.

There were some sharp fluctuations in the corn market yesterday, an early show Gross earnings of the Kansas City of strength sending prices up 1/4 1/4 at the start, with renewed pressure from Argentine sources starting a liquidation movement under which prices broke to a net decline of 191%c. Wheat also lost an early advance after holding steady nearly all day, the close showing prices the below to be above the finals of Saturday. Oats seemed to have some strength on their own account, and, apparently unaffeeted by movements of other grains, closed at unchanced to an advance

Switching from May to later months was the principal business in the coffee market, and the close, 6 to 9 points down, was only a point away from the drop at the opening
